2022 CHRISTMAS LOG By WALDORF ASTORIA VERSAILLES – TRIANON PALACE

ORIGAMI DE NOEL BY EDDIE BENGHANEM

PARIS - VERSAILLES, 23.09.2022, 07:43 Time

USPA NEWS - On December 19, 1907, Mr. Weill Martignan, entrepreneur, filed the statutes of a company called Trianon which was planned to build a luxury hotel in Versailles. The idea of ??the name of the company is justified by the proximity of the future hotel to the Petit and the Grand Trianon of the Park of the Palace of Versailles. The architecture was entrusted to René Sergent, who chose to build a metal frame with masonry facades which rigorously reproduced the classic stonework in the style of the time.

On December 19, 1907, Mr. Weill Martignan, entrepreneur, filed the statutes of a company called Trianon which was planned to build a luxury hotel in Versailles. The idea of ??the name of the company is justified by the proximity of the future hotel to the Petit and the Grand Trianon of the Park of the Palace of Versailles. The architecture was entrusted to René Sergent, who chose to build a metal frame with masonry facades which rigorously reproduced the classic stonework in the style of the time.

On May 1, 1910, many people from Versailles flocked to attend the inauguration of what would become “their” hotel over time. World personalities also came to stay there, praising both the luxurious setting and the calm of the place. Sarah Bernhardt stayed in the hotel during her Parisian performances of “l'Aiglon”. She rubbed shoulders with Marcel Proust, the banker Lafitte, and the aviator Santos-Dumont.

Over the years, Trianon Palace has become a haven for internationally renowned personalities. The tenors of international politics love Trianon Palace for its security. Writers and artists such as François Mauriac, Henri Bernstein, Jacques Brel, Jean Gabin, Jeanne Moreau, and even Tino Rossi have also come here to seek the calm conducive to creation.

In 1990, Trianon Palace and its 3 hectares of park were bought by a foreign company. The hotel immediately underwent major renovation work: in particular the construction of a second building called the ‘Pavillon du Trianon’, in order to allow the Trianon Palace hotel to welcome its customers in a larger, even more luxurious setting. The Pavillon building was also equipped with a new conference centre.

In 2009, the Waldorf Astoria Versailles – Trianon Palace became part of the prestigious Waldorf Astoria Hotels & Resorts brand, part of the Hilton group, which has more than 5,300 hotels in 106 countries around the world.
